MEMORANDUM FOR: DDCI

SUBJECT: SIS Graduation--Remarks

1. SIS is run by the Army for the Army and the Air Force. All attachés of these two services are trained there, as well as many analysts and officers from the field commands. Once under Fort Holabird, it is now under DIA. Beginning with the incoming class, there will be Navy participation. From here on, it will be a completely joint effort.

2. CIA has had the privilege of participating in the lecture program from the beginning. Among the first CIA lecturers in 1946 were [REDACTED], Colonel Lawrence Houston, and [REDACTED]. As many as 100 lectures a year are covered by CIA people.

3. The audience which will hear you will consist of 86 persons, both the graduating class and the incoming class. The majority will be attaché-designees, but there will also be some analysts and some from the field commands. A few of the attaché wives will be there. All of these wives will have been cleared for secret information.

4. You will be introduced by Major General Garrison B. Coverdale, Commandant, Army Intelligence Center, Fort Holabird, Maryland. Also in attendance to hear your remarks will be Major General Charles F. Leonard, Deputy ACSI, and Captain Bruce E. Wiggin, Director, Naval Intelligence School. In addition, invitations have been sent to General Carroll, General Breitweiser, and Admiral Lowrance.
